

TRADE AGREEMENTS ACT (TAA) COMPLIANCE STATEMENT

TAA refers to the Trade Agreements Act (19 U.S.C. § 2501-2581).

The Trade Agreements Act was enacted to govern trade agreements between the United States and foreign countries. TAA requires that the U.S. Government acquire products that are produced or undergo a "substantial transformation" within the United States or a designated country. A TAA-designated country is a nation with which the U.S. maintains a trade agreement and regards as a reliable or acceptable procurement source.

TAA compliant products make it possible for U.S. government agencies and educational institutions to do business with a USA based company like Airbus DS Government Solutions, (ADSGS). Federal procurement contracts that require TAA compliance include GSA (General Services Administration) Schedule contracts, IDIQ (Indefinite Delivery, Indefinite Quantity) contracts, and most DoD (Department of Defense) contracts.

ADSGS terminals are designed, manufactured, assembled, tested, and supported in the United States from US and international components. We are confident our terminals meet and exceed the TAA standards outlined above. It is ADSGS's responsibility to control and make sure that all products we include in our terminals are U.S. made or designated from approved countries.
